FOR THE WESTERN DISTRICT OF MICHIGAN

DARRIN DUANE WILSON,

Petitioner,

v.

Case No. 2:09-cv-268
HON. R. ALLAN EDGAR

GARY CAPELLO,

Respondent.

REPORT AND RECOMMENDATION

Petitioner Darrin Wilson filed this petition for writ of habeas corpus challenging his convictions for carjacking, receiving or concealing a stolen motor vehicle, third degree fleeing and eluding, felony firearm, and two counts of armed robbery. Petitioner was found not guilty of kidnapping. Petitioner was sentenced to concurrent terms of 15 to 22 years for carjacking and armed robbery, 18 months to 5 years for receiving or concealing a stolen motor vehicle and third degree fleeing and eluding, and 2 years for felony firearm. Respondent has filed an answer and has complied with Rule 5 of the Rules Governing Section 2254 Cases in the United States District Courts. The parties have briefed the issues and the matter is now ready for decision. In accordance with 28 U.S.C. § 636(b), authorizing United States Magistrate Judges to submit proposed findings of fact and recommendations for disposition of prisoner petitions, I am recommending that this petition for writ of habeas corpus be denied.

In April of 1996, the Antiterrorism and Effective Death Penalty Act of 1996 (AEDPA) became effective. Because this petition was filed after the effective date of the AEDPA, this Court must follow the standard of review established in that statute. Pursuant to the AEDPA, an application for writ of habeas corpus on behalf of a person who is incarcerated pursuant to a state conviction cannot be granted with respect to any claim that was adjudicated on the merits in state court unless the adjudication: “(1) resulted in a decision that was contrary to, or involved an unreasonable application of, clearly established federal law as determined by the Supreme Court of the United States; or (2) resulted in a decision that was based upon an unreasonable determination of the facts in light of the evidence presented in the state court proceeding.” 28 U.S.C. § 2254(d).

The AEDPA limits the source of law to cases decided by the United States Supreme Court. 28 U.S.C. § 2254(d). This provision marks a “significant change” and prevents the district court from looking to lower federal court decisions in determining whether the state decision is contrary to, or an unreasonable application of, clearly established federal law. Herbert v. Billy, 160 F.3d 1131, 1134 (6th Cir. 1998). To justify a grant of habeas corpus relief under this provision of the AEDPA, a federal court must find a violation of law “clearly established” by holdings of the Supreme Court, as opposed to its dicta, as of the time of the relevant state court decision. Williams v. Taylor, 529 U.S. 362, 412 (2000). The Supreme Court held that a decision of the state court is “contrary to” such clearly established federal law “if the state court arrives at a conclusion opposite to that reached by this Court on a question of law or if the state court decides a case differently than this Court has on a set of materially indistinguishable facts.” Id. A state court decision will be deemed an “unreasonable application” of clearly established federal law “if the state court identifies the correct governing legal principle from this Court’s decisions but unreasonably applies that principle to the facts of the prisoner’s case.” Id. A federal habeas court may not find a state adjudication to be “unreasonable” “simply because that court concludes in its independent judgment that the relevant state-court decision applied clearly established federal law erroneously or incorrectly.” Id. at 412. Rather, the application must also be “unreasonable.” Id. Further, the habeas court should not transform the inquiry into a subjective one by inquiring whether all reasonable jurists would agree that the application by the state court was unreasonable. Id. at 410 (disavowing Drinkard v. Johnson, 97 F.3d 751, 769 (5th Cir. 1996)). Rather, the issue is whether the state court’s application of clearly established federal law is “objectively unreasonable.” Williams, 529 U.S. at 409.

The AEDPA requires heightened respect for state factual findings. Herbert v. Billy, 160 F.3d 1131, 1134 (6th Cir. 1998). The habeas corpus statute has long provided that the factual findings of the state courts, made after a hearing, are entitled to a presumption of correctness. This presumption has always been accorded to findings of state appellate courts, as well as the trial court. See Sumner v. Mata, 449 U.S. 539, 546 (1981); Smith v. Jago, 888 F.2d 399, 407 n.4 (6th Cir. 1989), cert. denied, 495 U.S. 961 (1990). Under the AEDPA, a determination of a factual issue made by a state court is presumed to be correct. The petitioner has the burden of rebutting the presumption of correctness by clear and convincing evidence. 28 U.S.C. § 2254(e)(1); see also Warren v. Smith, 161 F.3d 358, 360-61 (6th Cir. 1998), cert. denied, 527 U.S. 1040 (1999).

Petitioner claims that insufficient evidence was presented at trial to convict him of the crimes because he could not be positively identified as the perpetrator. The Michigan Court of Appeals rejected this claim stating:

Defendant’s argument centers around the fact that the victims of the crimes initially identified someone else as the perpetrator in a photo lineup and only later, at the corporeal lineup and in court, identified defendant as the perpetrator. Considering the evidence in the light most favorable to the prosecution, as this Court must do when reviewing a sufficiency challenge, we hold that a rational trier of fact could have found that his identity was proven beyond a reasonable doubt. People v Sherman-Huffman, 466 Mich 39, 40; 642 NW2d 339 (2002). When reviewing sufficiency challenges, deference should be afforded to all reasonable inferences and determinations of credibility made by the jury. People v Nowack, 462 Mich 392, 400; 614 NW2d 78 (2000).

In this case, there was substantial circumstantial evidence linking defendant to the crimes in addition to the positive identification of him as the perpetrator by the victims both in court and at a corporeal lineup. Defendant points to discrepancies like the prior misidentification at the photo lineup and the testimony that the perpetrator was dressed in clothing dissimilar to the clothing defendant was wearing at the time of his arrest. However, the jury could have determined defendant had changed clothing since there was a significant period of time that defendant was unaccounted for after the commission of the crimes. Additionally, defendant was not included in the photo lineup, so the jury could have reasonably found defendant's exclusion was the reason for the misidentification. Regardless of the few contradictions in the evidence, the jury found defendant's identity as the perpetrator had been proven beyond a reasonable doubt. Id. "The credibility of identification testimony is a question for the trier of fact that we do not resolve anew." People v Davis, 241 Mich App 697, 700; 617 NW2d 381 (2000). With this standard in mind, the jury properly found there was sufficient evidence identifying defendant as the perpetrator of the charged crimes.

Michigan Court of Appeals' decision, docket #13 at 1-2.

A federal court sitting in habeas corpus review of a state criminal trial is to determine whether there was sufficient evidence of the essential elements of the crime to justify any rational trier of fact to find guilt beyond a reasonable doubt. Jackson v. Virginia, 443 U.S. 307, 319 (1979). The evidence is to be considered in the light most favorable to the prosecution. Id. It is clear that the evidence was sufficient to establish that Petitioner committed the crimes. As Petitioner points out, he was not identified in a photographic lineup which did not include his photograph. Petitioner also focuses on the fact that the criminal suspect was identified with different clothing than the clothing Petitioner was wearing at the time of his arrest. At the time of Petitioner's arrest, Cecil Cafe, a passenger in the car with Petitioner, was holding the victim's ATM card and Cafe was the individual who was identified in the photographic lineup. All of this information was before the jury for consideration. The Michigan Court of Appeals' decision was not contrary to, or involved an unreasonable application of, clearly established federal law as determined by the Supreme Court of the United States; or did not result in a decision that was based upon an unreasonable determination of the facts in light of the evidence presented in the state court proceeding.

In summary, the undersigned concludes that Petitioner's claims are without merit and therefore recommends that this Court dismiss the petition with prejudice.

In addition, if Petitioner should choose to appeal this action, I recommend that a certificate of appealability be denied as to each issue raised by the Petitioner in this application for habeas corpus relief. Under 28 U.S.C. § 2253(c)(2), the court must determine whether a certificate of appealability should be granted. A certificate should issue if Petitioner has demonstrated a "substantial showing of a denial of a constitutional right." 28 U.S.C. § 2253(c)(2).

The Sixth Circuit Court of Appeals has disapproved issuance of blanket denials of a certificate of appealability. Murphy v. Ohio, 263 F.3d 466 (6th Cir. 2001). Rather, the district court must "engage in a reasoned assessment of each claim" to determine whether a certificate is warranted. Id. Each issue must be considered under the standards set forth by the Supreme Court in Slack v. McDaniel, 529 U.S. 473 (2000). Murphy, 263 F.3d at 467. Consequently, the undersigned has examined each of Petitioner's claims under the Slack standard.

Under Slack, 529 U.S. at 484, to warrant a grant of the certificate, “[t]he petitioner must demonstrate that reasonable jurists would find the district court’s assessment of the constitutional claims debatable or wrong.” The undersigned concludes that reasonable jurists could not find that a dismissal of each of Petitioner’s claims was debatable or wrong. Therefore, the undersigned recommends that the court deny Petitioner a certificate of appealability.

NOTICE TO PARTIES: Objections to this Report and Recommendation must be served on opposing parties and filed with the Clerk of the Court within fourteen (14) days of receipt of this Report and Recommendation. 28 U.S.C. § 636(b)(1)(C); Fed. R. Civ. P. 72(b); W.D. Mich. LCivR 72.3(b). Failure to file timely objections constitutes a waiver of any further right to appeal. United States v. Walters, 638 F.2d 947 (6th Cir. 1981). See also Thomas v. Arn, 474 U.S. 140 (1985).
